

Task 1 - deadline 17th November 2010

Jumbled sentences

To understand the text means to be able to see the links between sentences. Read following paragraphs and number them in the correct order. To make it easier you can cut following 29 slips and order them first to make a story. The first one is done for you.

As an answer send us numbers and letters only.

	a	He hated maths and he hated tests.
	b	But today he wasn't going to have a problem if he had mistakes, because he could just say 'Rub it' very quietly and start again.
	c	He had a wonderful TV that you could smell and see at the same time.
1	d	Marvin felt very happy when he got up.
	e	It was much quicker with the new rubber.
	f	"And his name is Robert".
	g	He wasn't angry with Grandad any more.
	h	Every time that Marvin made a mistake. He said 'Rub it' very quietly and the rubber moved across the page until the mistake went away.

i	The shower sang its usual loud and happy song in its terrible voice and the toilet was speaking to him again.
j	"We have a new student at the school," said the headmaster.
k	Yes, today was going to be a lovely day.
l	'Robert' sounded like 'Rub it', so the rubber started moving on Marvin's desk.
m	His clock said 'Lots Of Time To Get Ready' so marvin spent a long time in the bathroom.
n	But Marvin was still looking at the new boy.
o	Grandad's rubber worked very well.
p	And he finished his essay last night.
q	When he wanted to stop rubbing out, he said 'Stop' very quietly and the rubber stopped.

r	Marvin finished the test quickly.
s	He didn't see the rubber as it quietly started its work.
t	The headmaster walked into the class at that moment.
u	Even thinking about the maths test today didn't make him feel bad.
v	"It is his first day at school today and I want you all to meet him."
w	"Yes!" thought Marvin.
x	"Who knows? Maybe we could become friends," he thought to himself.
y	The headmaster was still talking. "He is going to sit next to ... Marvin"

z	He felt very happy with himself when the teacher told the class to stop writing and he had no more questions to answer
za	He had a small, fair-haired boy with him.
zb	He hasn't meet Tyson on the way to school, so when the maths test started Marvin was feeling really good.
zc	Marvin liked the look of this new boy.