In the year 1485 a woman called Rosa White lived alone in Swaffham, a small town in the east of England. One night she had a dream. In the dream she went to London where she met a handsome man who gave her a beautiful golden ring and wanted to marry her. She had the same dream the next six nights. Finally, she decided to ride to London and try her luck.

Her horse was very tired because it was quite a long way to London. And so when they arrived both Rosa and her horse needed to have a rest. She went to the pub to find a bed to sleep. But all the people there were so unfriendly that she decided to return back home.

At that moment she saw a tall man coming towards her. 'Why are you in London?' said the man. 'Because I had a dream', answered Rosa. 'That's strange', said the man, 'because I've had a dream, too.' Rosa asked the man to tell her about it.

'In the dream, I saw a man sitting near the church. He gave me a golden ring and told me to go to a place called Swaffham and find a woman called Rosa! He told me that she is my true love and that I should give her this ring. I walked there, knocked the door, walked in and saw her cooking in the kitchen. She was beautiful! And she looked like you!'

Rosa was surprised and she said 'I am Rosa from Swaffham.' They were talking the whole night and they fell in love. In the morning he gave Rosa the ring and asked her to marry him. Rosa was no longer alone.
